

Ask Sandy

By Sandy Smith

Renowned Psychic, Medium and Healer Answers Questions from Our Readers

Q. I need to find homes for our shelter cats quickly. Tammy is a woman who has offered to take several. Will she and can I trust her?

Teri, Burbank

A. Yes! I get you can trust Tammy. It feels right now that she is overwhelmed with responsibility. I get that Tammy will take a few of the cats. God bless her; she is doing everything she can to help these homeless animals. We need more people to follow Tammy's example and help these unwanted animals.

Q. I need to set up a business meeting, and John (our boss) always invites another manager. She and I are bitter rivals, and every meeting turns into an argument. How do I get him to meet with me without inviting Mindy?

*Julie,
Glendale*

A. Tell John you have personal concerns that you need to discuss with him. He will be open to your request. Also, don't push him to make a quick decision and don't place blame (focus only on resolving the issue at hand and stay calm). Thank him for his time, and let him think about a resolution.

Q. There's a lot of stress and dissention with my job. Will I be getting a new job soon?

Alexander, Studio City

A. No! You haven't had enough yet. You would like to make the change, but you're not motivated enough. Motivation for you is being so uncomfortable with a situation, you need to make a change; this is how you stir up courage.

Sandy Smith is a third generation psychic, medium and healer in L.A. If you have a question for Smith, submit it with your full name, address and phone number (optional) to buy@sandysmith.info or visit www.sandysmith.info. You may include a fictitious name for print. This column is for entertainment purposes only.